The first year of the course will entail the learning of linguistic methods of analysis. It will also feature the study of language and social contexts paying particular regard to the following questions:

You will also learn how to write creatively across a range of genres.

Preparation

Language is a fascinating subject for study. You will learn how and why language changes and evolves. You will learn how spoken language differs from written language. You will also learn how the language of social media differs from other forms of English.

For a more detailed description of the course and its contents you should visit the EDUQAS English Language A-level website using this link AS and A Level English Literature | Eduqas

Or type in: https://www.eduqas.co.uk/qualifications/english-literature-asa-level/#tab_keydocuments

By way of introducing yourself to the subject, I would highly recommend that you read Bill Bryson's book on the English Language titled "Mother Tongue" which is funny, accessible, and interesting. I would also recommend that you read David Crystal's book: "Words, Words, Words".

Questions

In addition to the above reading, I would like you to answer the following questions:

1. What is the etymology (word history) of your first name; your last name and the place in which you live?
2. Why do we spell knee with a k?
3. Why might men and women speak differently?
4. What is Standard English?
5. “Prince Charles speaks better English than Peter Kay?” Consider the truth of this statement.
6. What is a modal auxiliary verb?
7. What have the words shampoo, thug and jodhpurs got in common?
